to the fact that Jeff Grover is the best pitcher in the league — and some to the fact that Mike's isn't really as good a hitting team as they professed.

"Mike's had a nice season. They came a long way, but they were obviously no match for us."

AQUATICS AVAILABLE

Also available at the YMCA is advanced lifesaving. The Red Cross life-saving is accepted and necessary for Princeton's six home footballing position and ball games this fall include those taking the course must Bucknell on September 24; Columbia on October 8; Navy on October 15; Lafayette on October 25, from 9 to 12 noon and from 1 to 3, and September 12 from 9 to 12.

PHS Physical Exams Set

Physical examinations for members of all Princeton High School fall athletic teams will be held at the high school Thursday, August 25, from 9 to 12 noon and from 1 to 3, and September 12 from 9 to 12.

Because all sports candidates must have a physical examination before reporting for their first practice session, students are encouraged to have it done as soon as possible on the above dates. Further information is available from the high school office, 924-5600.

The invitation to groups from New Jersey and nearby states includes a reserved seat in a preferred location at the game, a box lunch provided at the adjacent bus parking area, and if desired, access to the campus for self-conducted tours of such attractions as Nassau Hall, the Art Museum and the University Chapel. The cost of the package is $10 per person.

Complete Study Urged For Borough's Needs

Spending $5,000 to $10,000 for a complete study to find out what the Borough needs — and maybe getting the Township to join for a community-wide study — might save money in the long run, and benefit the community.

The suggestion was raised this week by Borough Council member Richard Woodbridge, who said he has already asked consultant Charles Nathanson to assemble a proposal which could be discussed by Council. Mr. Nathanson is the consultant who filed the successful application with the state for the $85,000 the Borough has received for the rehabilitation of the John-Witherspoon neighborhood.

Driving More Than the Usual Challenge; Roads Are Torn Up for Various Repairs

Driving around town these days is like playing a labyrinthine video game, only worse — at least your passage through the game is on a smooth surface. Streets are torn up for the following reasons:

Nassau Street, near Linden. Replacing worn sewers. When this section of the job has been completed, probably this Friday, crews will head for Dadds Lane and the Shadybrook area to replace sewer lines there.

Charlton Street. This is routine Borough road repair.

Hulfish-Chambers-Robeson. Public Service and Elizabethtown Water are working here in connection with Collins' rehabilitation of the Nassau Inn.

The water company's chief main used to go through land now owned by Collins — what would have been the north continuation of John Street. The company has been relocating this main, looping it around Chambers, Hulfish and Robeson to remove it from Collins property.

Public Service has been working on Hulfish to provide gas to the Nassau Inn.

Later, Collins itself will replace the sanitary sewer lines and storm drain in Hulfish. This is work required of Collins by the Planning Board as a condition of approval.

Princeton's Unique School System Will Open Its Doors September 12

What kind of school system will your child enter on September 12?

Newcomers, clearly, would like to know. But even parents who have lived in Princeton several years may not know some things about this unique — yes, unique — public school system of about 2,400 children.

"Excellence from diversity," is the way Superintendent Paul Houston describes it.

To give you an idea:

- More than 40 languages are native to this student body.
- Computer instruction begins in third grade.
- Black students constitute 13 percent of school population, very high for a suburban district.

- Princeton High School has the highest Scholastic Aptitude Scores in the state.
- About 97 percent of all students pass New Jersey's Basic Skills tests.
- Ten percent of the district's students are in remedial education, another 10 percent in Special Education.
- With a student count slightly higher than 1,000, the high school has 32 athletic teams.
- Many children come from broken homes.
- Drug use is down sharply from ten years ago, but alcohol is a big problem.

- Princeton High's jazz band wins everything and has never come in second.
- Princeton High's choir and orchestra have been invited to perform next July at an international festival in Vienna.
- Parents participate vigorously in school activities.

The babel of languages is both positive and negative. It is an incredibly rich experience for all the kids — you get to explain Halloween to somebody who never heard of it before and you learn about holidays you never heard of — but teachers must do a lot of basic language training not required of teachers in other kinds of districts.

"What languages? Well," Dr. Houston says, "Urdu, Telegu and a lot of the standard ones like Farsi. Haitian French, Hispanics from many countries, eastern European languages — usually Russian."

"Italian is a major one because it's a significant part of the Princeton community and relatives come here to visit their families or to stay."

Princeton Theological Seminary families bring the African and Caribbean languages; the Institute for

SUMMER'S LAST WEEK-END: Why not spend it at Turning Basin Park, Princeton's newest outdoor recreation spot? It's on lower Alexander, between the canal and Stony Brook, the entrance on the right as you drive south from Princeton. Grills for toasting a frankfurter, a canoe launch into either canal or Stony Brook, plenty of parking, toilet facilities. Welcome Labor Day!

Borough Needs

Other neighborhoods, Mr. Woodbridge suggested, also have needs. He mentioned Jugtown — the area around Nassau and Harrison — and the neighborhood off Nassau where most of the streets are named for trees.

"Maybe there are other grants out there," he remarked.

As Fire Commissioner for the Borough, Mr. Woodbridge said, he is interested in another kind of study. This one would examine Princeton's fire coverage in light of town change and growth.

"Are the firehouses correctly located for the 1990s and 2000 and the growth of the Township? Can we get enough firemen, if we say they must live within a six-mile limit of the Medical Center?"

All three firehouses are in the Borough, on Chambers, Chestnut and North Harrison Streets.

Mr. Woodbridge said many firemen are concerned about the six-mile limit. Chief William Rodweller warns that firemen must live close enough to get to a fire quickly; on the other hand, it's hard to get enough members as it is.

"We need a demographic study, and it should involve other towns because we have mutual fire aid with other communities."

He said he may ask Council and Township Committee to hire an organization to "examine the whole picture" of fire coverage for Princeton. Although all three of Princeton's volunteer fire companies are located in Princeton, volunteers come also from the Township and the companies fight Township fires. The Township contributes to the purchase of equipment.

Before construction begins on the east addition to the Nassau Inn, Collins must provide to the Borough a traffic plan which will ease the flow during construction.

FEWER GYPSY MOTHS
Less Leaf Damage. Damage to New Jersey trees by the leaf-eating gypsy moth caterpillar decreased dramatically this year. According to the state Department of Agriculture, defoliation dropped more than 50 percent to 379,535 acres.

1983 was the second consecutive year that gypsy moth defoliation dropped. Last year's 575,985-acre defoliation marked the state's first significant gypsy moth population decline in several years, according to William Metterhouse, director of the department's Division of Plant Industry. Statewide defoliation had been building since the late 1970s, peaking with a record 900,000-acre defoliation in 1981, he said.

The Department attributes the decline to a natural gypsy moth virus, which last year killed off large numbers of the pests, and to the department's integrated pest management, which combines the use of insecticides with the release of laboratory-reared insects which are the natural predators of pests such as the gypsy moth. Outbreaks of gypsy moth remain high in some sections of southern New Jersey, but they should begin to drop next year, when the natural virus is expected to enter the pest population there.

DIRECTOR NAMED
For John-Witherspoon Project. Michael Floyd, 35, a born-and-raised Princeton resident, has been hired by the Borough to direct the municipality's $85,000 Neighborhood Preservation Program grant. He will begin work in the $14,000 position this Thursday.

A graduate of Rutgers University in art history, Mr. Floyd was an associate of another Borough resident, Joseph P. Moore, in the New Jersey Department of Community Affairs. Both left the department with the departing administration of former Governor Brendan Byrne.

Before going with the DCA, Mr. Floyd led a research and survey team for Mathematica.

He lived at 10 Quarry Street in his boyhood, attending Nassau Street School, Quarry Street School and graduating from Princeton High School. His family moved into the Township when he was 13. He now lives at 98 Nassau.

Mr. Floyd's parents are James and Fannie Floyd. His mother was born in the house at 10 Quarry Street and her family still lives there. His brother, James Jr., also lives on Quarry. His father, vice-president for personnel at Educational Testing Service, served two terms on Township Committee and was mayor in 1971.

FOR THE ELDERLY
Townhouses Planned. "Dodd's Court," the 34 townhouses for the elderly planned by developer Donald W. Light Jr., will be explained to the Township Zoning Board at a special meeting Tuesday, September 13 at 7:30 in the Valley Road building.

Mr. Light has an option to buy a parcel of land on Terhune opposite Thanet Drive, from Edward C. Kopp III, who once planned to build houses there himself and in fact, obtained a use variance to do so in 1972. The sewer moratorium of the following year brought those plans to a halt.

In addition, he needs variances from the Township's floor-area ratio.

Architect Robert Geddes has conceived a project of one-story homes with private patio, two bedrooms (or bedroom and den) and one and one-half baths. Covered walkways would connect pavilions designed for crafts, social events, a library or exercise, and there would be a garden-like setting and outdoor benches.

Elderly residents would have maid service twice a week, housekeeper service once a week and grounds maintenance. There would be a clinic on the site, and on-call medical service.

The project has been designed to accommodate from 50 to 60 residents. Mr. Light has not said what price range he plans for the units.

TO HANDLE SEVER'S
New Engineer Hired. Martin Dorward will begin work this Thursday as the Borough's new assistant sanitary engineer. His chief responsibility will be to handle infiltration-inflow problems after those outlined in the Brokaw report have been corrected. The Borough is currently going down the Brokaw list, doing replacements and repairs.

"Hiring him is a big load off my mind," Mayor Robert W. Cawley told reporters Monday. "After this Brokaw work is done, we have no guide plan."

THE FLOWERS THAT BLOOM IN THE FALL will be on sale at the French Market, Nassau and Mercer Street, starting Friday, September 9. Mrs. James M. McKinnon, left, is a co-chairman of this year's market, and Mrs. Thomas W. Eglin is a member of the Garden Club of Princeton that sponsors the weekly event, spring and fall.

The new developer is asking a hardship variance from the Zoning Board. He needs 77 parking spaces and is asking permission to provide 30 to 43, including 13 off-site spaces on the new road he will build in from Terhune.

In addition, he needs variances from the Township's floor-area ratio.

and it will be Mr. Dorward's job to work on one."

This Thursday, in a brief work session, Borough Council is scheduled to accept the bid in the neighborhood of $300,000 — for the next step in sewer rehabilitation: drawing a television camera through the lines to show up damage, and then grouting.

Mr. Dorward's salary will be $23,500. The job was a casualty of Borough financial retrenchment in the 1970s and has been vacant for some years.

WOODBIDGE BEGINS
Starts Mayoral Campaign. Jumping into the Borough's mayoral campaign ahead of his opponent — and tossing a dart in her direction in the process — Republican candidate Richard Woodbridge issued a formal campaign statement this week.

"I believe it is wrong to seek public office with the primary intent of using it as a 'stepping stone' for other political opportunities," Mr. Woodbridge declared. "I pledge to serve my full four years if elected."

Mayor this fall." His opponent, Democratic candidate Barbara Signmund, ran in the Democratic United States Senate primary and, earlier in her career, accepted an appointment to the Mercer County Board of Freeholders after she had been elected to Borough Council.

Promising to keep "a tight rein on taxes," candidate Woodbridge pointed to grantsmanship as one way of reining them in.

"I am proud to say that I played a major role, along with the mayor, Councilwoman Barbara Hill and Councilman Peter Bearse in obtaining a $400,000 grant ($85,000 in 1983 alone) for the Witherspoon-Jackson Development Corporation."

The Borough now has the $85,000 for rehabilitating the John-Witherspoon area through the development corporation. To receive the full $400,000, the Borough must have the grant renewed in each of the next four years.

Mr. Woodbridge urges a "systematic study" to find out whether other grants are available.

As examples of cost-cutting, he cites purchase of a $50,000 mini-pumper for the fire department instead of a large $120,000 fire-pumper, at a saving of $70,000, and the donation by Remington Rand of money to buy bullet-proof vests for all police in Borough, Township and Plainsboro.

Mr. Woodbridge was Police Commissioner of the Borough for four years, has been Fire Commissioner for the last two and one-half years and a volunteer fireman for eight.

He was the first co-chair — with former Township Committee member Kate Litvack — of the Joint First Aid and Rescue Squad Committee that instituted the daytime paramedic program assuring daytime ambulance service.

In his statement, Mr. Woodbridge says he would set aside "at least one hour every Monday afternoon" for meetings with the public; would institute a Suggestion Box and establish a public calendar, supported by the advertisements of local merchants, and containing emergency numbers, community events, names of officials and the like.

He also promises to continue work on repairing the sewers, and to run the Borough "like a business."

PEDESTRIAN BITTEN

Dog, Owner Sought. Borough police and Princeton Regional Health Officer Patrick O. Hanson are seeking the owner of a dog which bit a Patton Avenue resident near her home Friday morning. (See letter to Mailbox, page 14).

Mr. Hanson wants to locate the dog to determine if the animal has been quarantined and to advise the victim, Edith Wray, 40 Patton Avenue.

The dog, the object of a search by Dog Control Officer Roger Breese, is described by police as an Airedale or Wire-Haired Terrier with light brown, short curly hair.

The man walking the dog is described as an elderly, short, thin white male with white hair. He was wearing red glasses and a red Phillies baseball cap.

According to police, the dog, who was leashed, pulled away from its owner, ran up to the victim and bit her on the right wrist. Although the victim requested the owner to remain, he fled the scene. Mrs. Wray was treated at Princeton Medical Center for a puncture wound.

Mr. Hanson has requested that anyone who saw the incident or has any knowledge of the dog to call his office at 924-3407. The dog must be examined before the victim will know if she has to undergo a series of rabies inoculations.

Nassau Inn Will Open

It may not look like it from the outside, but the Nassau Inn will indeed reopen September 1, as promised. That's the promise of Collins vice-president Gary Green to nervous brides with wedding receptions scheduled for the Nass' public rooms, and the Chamber of Commerce, which has a September 1 lunch meeting.

"It'll be a crash to the wire," he concedes, "and it doesn't mean that at 6 a.m. September 1 there won't be painters still at work, but we're going to make it."

Construction will continue in "certain areas," but walls will be intact.

Mr. Green heaps praise on Bowers Construction, his contractor, and especially on its president, Ray Bowers. "I told Ray he ought to be guest of honor at that Chamber lunch."

SUSPECT IS CHARGED

In Restaurant Theft. A prime suspect in the theft of $15,000 in cash and checks last week from the Marita's Cantina restaurant, 138 Nassau Street, has turned himself in to police authorities.

Hertis Smithy, 33, 28 Lytle Street, who had been employed as an assistant manager prior to the theft, has been charged with burglary and theft. He surrendered himself on Friday, four days after the restaurant's safe had been discovered looted, to Detectives Randy Sutton and James Agins. He was later released after posting $3,500 bail set by Judge Russell W. Annich Jr.

Approximately $13,000 of the $15,000 was recovered by the police. The remaining $2,000 was apparently spent in New York City, police said, where Smithy had fled following the theft.

SILVERWARE STOLEN

From Cameron Court Home. A quantity of silverware and an antique china vase were stolen between 11:30 Sunday night and 8 the next morning from a dining room in a Cameron Court home.

Someone removed a ground floor window to enter the house just prior to the start of a heavy thunderstorm, police said. Two cups filled with water were recovered by police outside the house.

Police are still waiting for an inventory to be made of the missing items.

Between 4:40 Monday afternoon and 9:20 that night, an intruder entered a second-story bathroom window of an Olden Street residence and took $29 from an envelope left on a kitchen counter.

Police report that the intruder used a section of rail fence propped against the house to reach the window.

Approximately $1,500 worth of camera equipment, including two cameras and two lenses, was stolen last week from a student's room in 1941 Hall on the Princeton University campus.

A screen had been pried away and the window opened to enter the suite which was ransacked, police said. Also missing is a portable cassette player.

If you're new in town or new to Princeton High School and will enter 10th, 11th or 12th grades at PHS next month, you're invited by Student Council to an orientation program Wednesday, September 7. The orientation will last from 10:30 to noon, and will be held in the Davis Library Conference Room of the school. A tour of the school will be included. If you have questions, you may call the high school's main office, through 924-5600.

ternoon caused some minor damage to the back of the building.

Police report that numerous windows were shattered and some shutters blackened by the intense heat. Police in two patrol cars responded to the 1:26 call and saw flames and heavy smoke on their arrival. They were unable to put out the fire with patrol car extinguishers and called for aid from the Princeton volunteer fire company which extinguished the blaze. Cause of the fire is unknown.

A small field fire at Princeton Community Village early last week was extinguished by residents prior to the arrival of police.

Some burned pieces of paper were found at the fire site and police believe the fire may have been started by some children who were observed playing with matches prior to the fire.

THEFT REPORT

Mail Package Stolen. A mail package was reported stolen this week from a Palmer Square apartment hallway. It contained, police said, four floral art drawings valued at $500 and a $250 check.

The opened package was found in the basement of the Palmer Square building. Police said the theft took place between August 9-15 but was not reported until Monday.

The wallets of a man and a woman were stolen last week from a purse which had been placed under a bench near the Woodrow Wilson building fountain while the victims were attending a dance.

One wallet contained $5 and 20 checks; the second $20. Both victims are residents of Harrison Street.

In what could be described as The Case of the Missing Briefcase, a Princeton resident told police Monday that someone stole his briefcase from a knapsack which was secured to the rear of his bicycle. The case was taken while the victim was in transit from Witherspoon

Street to Prospect Avenue.

The victim did not notice the briefcase was missing until he arrived home. Could it have fallen out? No, said the police. The knapsack and its contents had been securely fastened.

A Skillman resident who parked her car last week at the corner of Leigh and John Street before looking at an apartment first removed her $250 watch and placed it under the car seat.

Returning to her car, she noticed two young, black males running from the car. Her watch was missing.

An employee of the Puchinello store in the Princeton Shopping Center lost $50 last week when her purse was stolen from a counter behind the cash register. The suspect, who was in the store and ran out carrying something when he was seen by the clerk, is described as a black male, 6-1, light skinned, thin, wearing blue jeans and a blue T-shirt with white lettering.

AFTER A LAPSE...
Blackburn Returns to Docket. After a lapse of some weeks, the name William Blackburn appeared again in the police docket.

Blackburn, 56, who has no known address, is viewed by many as a town character; to the police he is a public nuisance, who, says Chief Michael Carnevale, has forced the police to spend hundreds of manhours in paperwork and court appearances.

Last Wednesday afternoon, Blackburn was in possession of a couch in the Palmer Square Plaza near the fountain site. Palmer Square officials signed a summons for loitering against Blackburn which was served by Ptl. John Reading.

Earlier, Blackburn had been observed in the taxi area across Nassau Street in possession of a couch and chair. At the time, police advised him to dispose of them.

PARKED CAR PUSHED
Damage is $800. A small Honda Civic, parked in the lot last week, was pushed forward by vandals, causing $800 in damage. Described by Chief Michael Carnevale as the work of pranksters, the vandalism took place between 10 and 11 in the evening. The owner is a Princeton resident.

The left front tire of a truck of a Princeton resident was punctured while it was parked during the weekend in a lot off Maclean Street.

Township police report that the air was let out of three tires of a car of a Ewing Street resident. In addition, a four by four-foot section of fence on the same property was pushed down. Police believe the vandalism is the work of juveniles who have a gripe against the victim.

News Of The THEATRES

BY MOLIERE?
Not Entirely. That's the year-long project of Theatre Workshop II at Creative Theatre Unlimited — "Not Entirely by Moliere."
In the workshop, students will create — helped by composer Rita Asch — a musical farce based on Moliere's stock characters and situations. Students in Workshop I will develop an adaptation of the novel, "Mrs. Frisby and the Rats of Nimh," by Robert C. O'Brien.
In two video production classes, students will run the camera, monitor the sound, design lighting and set and direct and act in their own tape presentations.

Enrollment for Creative Theatre's 14th year is now open. Classes are limited to 8 to 14 students, and early registration is recommended. For the youngest children, the goal is to develop creative expression, working together to create and act out stories. By the second grade, emphasis is on understanding a theatre framework and working within it.
By the fifth grade, students are learning how to evaluate their own work and that of the other students. In grades six through 12, students learn acting technique, scene study and characterization.
Open house will be held Tuesday, September 13, from 4:30 to 6:30 at CTU's studio in the basement of Trinity Church, 33 Mercer Street, Princeton. Classes are held at Trinity, in the West Windsor-Plainsboro Community Education Adult Program, at the Burnt Hill School in Montgomery, the Joyce Kilmer School in Trenton and the Ethel McKnight School, East Windsor.
Details are available from 924-3489.

'We're Going On!'
We don't quite know how, but we're going on... In fine dramatic style, Princeton Community Players has decided not to allow itself to be borne, lifeless, into the wings but to stay on stage and fight.
At a membership meeting last Thursday attended by about 35, members agreed to keep looking for a place to play — an eviction notice from the 171 Broadway theatre has precipitated the live-or-die crisis — and even to produce a play this fall.
Several Pennington Players members attended Thursday's meeting and provided welcome advice, past history and booster talk. Pennington knows what it's like not to have a place, and members of that group told Princeton about their wanderings over the years, and their final discovery of a theatre.
Details about Princeton Community Players' plans will be announced in weeks to come.

There's even a little of the old soft shoe.
The name is "Ta Ra Ra Boom De Ay!" and it's a single performance of old-time American music hall songs, to be given this Monday — Labor Day — at 8 p.m. by the New Jersey Shakespeare Festival on the campus of Drew University, Madison.
Songs tell of love and woe, innocence and innocence lost, and some of the songs are so bad they are the best of the evening. Or so the Festival says.
Tickets may be reserved by calling 201-377-4487.

AUDITIONS UNDERWAY
For Rutgers Chorus.

Rutgers Musica Sacra is now holding auditions for its 1983-84 season. The 90-voice mixed chorus is open to the general public as well as Rutgers students, faculty and staff.
This fall the chorus will present Haydn's "Creation," in the original German, with soloists and orchestra. Scheduled for December, the concert will take place in Rutgers' new Nicholas Music Center.
Rutgers Musica Sacra, under the direction of Associate Professor Barbara Lingelbach, has been performing large-scale choral works since its inception in 1976, and last summer appeared with the Opera Theatre of New Jersey in New Brunswick's Concert-in-the-Parks series. Audition information can be obtained by the general calling (201) 545-1015.

Auditions in Trenton
Open auditions for parts in the musical, "Working", will be held Saturday and Sunday, September 10 and 11, starting at noon in the Mill Hill Playhouse, Front and Montgomery Streets, Trenton. The production is that of the Trenton Theatre Guild.

A large and diversified cast is required, including Black and Hispanic actors, children over 10 and men and women in the 50-60 age range. Actors should be able to sing and move, and should come to the audition prepared to sing to piano accompaniment. Those who audition are also asked to wear comfortable clothes.

"Working" is based on Studs Terkel's best-seller, and has been adapted for the stage by Steven Schwartz, the author of "Godspell." Michael Lawrence will direct.

Further information is available from Mr. Lawrence at 924-4632 or Nick Proccacio, 921-2339.

CONCERT SERIES SET
By Rutgers. A performance by Yehudi Menuhin, the violinist and humanitarian, will be one of the highlights of the Rutgers University Concert Series of 1983-84.

Other presentations in this series will be given by the Tregler-Watts Duo, featuring Charles Tregler on violin and Andre Watts on piano; the Swedish National Orchestra of Gothenburg, under the baton of Neeme Jarvi; and the Hungarian State Folk Ensemble, with its brightly dressed dancers, singers and musicians.

Tickets for the series are now available at a savings over single-performance tickets. All four concerts begin at 8 p.m. in the College Avenue Gymnasium in New Brunswick.

The first program will be on Monday, October 3, featuring the Swedish National Orchestra of Gothenburg, one of the oldest orchestras in Scandinavia. The orchestra regularly tours Scandinavia and has also performed in Germany, Czechoslovakia, Ireland and England. Rutgers will be the first concert site on the ensemble's premier American tour.

The second concert, set for Tuesday, December 13, will feature the Tregler-Watts Duo. Violinist Charles Tregler and pianist Andre Watts first collaborated in May 1978 to commemorate the 150th anniversary of Schubert's death. Their performances met such critical acclaim that they now tour together part of each year.

Mr. Tregler gained an international reputation in 1962 when he became the only American ever to win first prize in the coveted Wieniawski International Violin Competition in Poland. Since then, he has regularly performed his repertoire of 50 concertos with leading orchestras and conductors.

At age 36, Mr. Watts has already earned a secure place as one of three or four keyboard giants of today. Born in Nurnberg, Germany, the son of a Black American serviceman and his Hungarian wife, Mr. Watts lived in Europe until he was 8

LET'S TALK ABOUT

MEDICINAL PLANTS with Sam DeTuro Woodwinds Associates

Did you know that Willow trees were actually the original source of aspirin?

Plants of all types contribute to medicine. The world's ecosystems harbor an astounding diversity of wild genetic resources that are of enormous value to people. Wild species provide food and genetic material for the development of more vigorous disease-resistant strains. They also offer the possibility of entirely new foods, especially with the advent of genetic engineering. Wild plants provide an assortment of chemical ingredients for native as well as commercial medicines.

Wild plants contribute to medicine in four ways: the plant itself is taken directly as a medicine; active therapeutic agents are extracted from plants; plants contribute "active ingredients" from which drugs are synthesized; the chemistry of plants may suggest to scientists new chemicals which can produce without direct use of the plant itself.

Many important contributions of wild plants to western medicine include morphine (opium); quinine (cinchona); atropine (an antidote and antispasmodic) which is Egyptian herb obtained largely from the wild in Egypt; hydrocortisone (derived notably from wild yams); plicoprine, used as a diuretic, from wild yam in Brazil. Plants are also providing important sources of anti-cancer agents. The rosy periwinkle is known for alkaloids which, when administered in combination with other drugs, can produce up to an 80% remission rate in cases of lymph-system cancer.

The Amazon forests may hold several plant species that could yield key anti-cancer drugs, according to the National Cancer Institute, and the Economic Botany Laboratory, Curitiba, the second most promising zone for anti-cancer drugs lies at the opposite end of the ecological spectrum: the arid lands. Many plants in these zones occur in small and isolated families with highly divergent biochemistries, some involving compounds that kill cancer cells. It is truly amazing what nature has in store for us! Give her a helping hand by being kind to your trees and shrubs. Call WOODWINDS (924-3500) for assistance with all your garden's needs.

Irresponsible Dog Owner.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
I would like to express my appreciation for the local Princeton police, who are kind and considerate beyond the call of duty. Also, since they are often faced with situations of grave danger, it is too bad that we usually wait until some emergency hits us before we get down to the business of expressing our public thanks to them. We should be constantly appreciative.

Most of us have heard of "hit and run" drivers, but this morning I had the strange experience of being bitten by a dog on the leash of a "bite and run" dog-walker.

I had started walking to work, but hardly a few steps from home I was attacked and driven into the street by a dog that finally left me with two teeth marks on my right forearm. The man who was walking the dog pulled him hard and began rushing up the street as fast as he could pull the dog. All the time the dog was growling and threatening me. When I ran ahead in the street and yelled to the man that I had been bitten, I was met with no response.

I was not thinking of suing him, or any other dire thought. All I wanted to know was the condition of the dog's health and whether it had the necessary shots. With the current rabies problems among animals that are often attacked by dogs, I certainly did not want to be faced with unnecessary shots of vaccine for rabies. I observed that the dog did have tags attached to its collar, and I finally gave up and returned home to clean up the wound and call the police.

The police were very cooperative and took me to the hospital emergency room for a tetanus shot which was the first need, and then returned me — all of which saved me a lot of lost time from my work. This was important to me because I work by the hour as a temporary secretary.

August is a bad month for dogs! Hopefully the police will find the dog and the owner. The audacity of the dog-walker (or owner, which is probably the case) astounds me. A good sense of humanity is a much better quality to possess than a good sense of audacity!

Quest for Peace.
To the Editor of Town Topics:
As coordinator of the recent Nordic Women for Peace Weekend here in Princeton, I wish to publicly thank all in the area who helped us extend friendship to our Scandinavian friends in their quest for peace.

Thanks to Mayor Winthrop Pike, President Barbara Hill and Councilman Robert McChesney for the warmth and inspiration of their greetings from both borough and township governments, and to Chaplain William K. Kirby for extending a welcome from the University.

Dunnivant of Trenton's Soup Kitchen.

The Borough and Township Police, who offered us sincere and understanding protection, should be particularly commended.

The following groups and merchants helped our church with donations of cash and/or food and we are grateful:
The Greenline Dinner, Jeff White, manager; The Whole Earth, Denny Drueding, manager; Great Tastes of Somerset, Judy Goodkin, manager; Sickle Pickle of Hamilton, Ruth Tomlinson, manager; Nora Powers Neighborhood Club; Princeton's Thursday Morning Yoga Club.

On their way to Washington, the Nordics have met many others but their eyes still light up at the mention of Princeton!

It was caused, says Township Chief Anthony Pinelli, by a misunderstanding by the alarm companies. Borough residents, he said, do not have to comply with a new alarm registration ordinance. It is for Township residents only.

SEVEN ARE FINED
In Borough Traffic Court, seven Princeton area residents were fined Monday in Borough Traffic Court.

Mary L. Marson, 101 Westerly Road, and Diana M. Celeno, 1201 Stuart Road, were each fined $60, and Ronald A. Kirsch, 14 Dickinson Street, $70, for speeding. Failure to give proper signal cost Jane M. Peden, 4 Kings Court, Pennington, $60.

Others: Ruth Miller, 209B Kingston Terrace Apartments, $60, careless driving; James P. Oakes, 22 N. Stanworth Drive, $25, illegal exit from a parking lot; and John C. Russo, 58 Cleveland Lane, $25, operating a moped without a helmet.

Two Charges of DWI. In Township traffic court last week, Rowland V. O'Malley II, 43 Prospect Avenue, was charged with two separate cases of driving while intoxicated.

On a second charge, stemming from a May 22 incident, Mr. O'Malley was fined $515 and had his license revoked for two years. He was also ordered by Judge Sydney Souter to give 30 days to community service and to attend AA meetings in the Borough. On an earlier, March 25, drunk driving charge, he was fined $265 and had his license revoked for six months.

In a criminal charge, Gene T. Jones, RD 1, Canal Road, was fined $275 for resisting arrest.

Mr. Jones also received a 30-day suspended sentence to the Mercer County Correctional Center and was placed on a year's probation. He was also directed to pay $25 to the Violent Crime Compensation Commission.

YES, VIRGINIA
There Are Honest People. In contrast to the week's litany of thefts, robberies and crime, Chief Michael Carnevale commented this week that it was refreshing to be able to report the act of an honest citizen.

When a Belle Mead resident found a wallet containing $302 on a Nassau Street sidewalk Monday, he brought it to police headquarters. A short time later the wallet and its owner were reunited after the victim, a resident of Franklin Park, came to headquarters to report the loss of her wallet.

32 BIRTHS LISTED
In Single Week. In the week ending August 25, there were 18 girls and 14 boys born at Princeton Medical Center.

Dear Brooke: Here's the Lowdown on Coping With Your New Role as a Princeton Freshman

Dear Brooke, Congratulations. This Sunday you will begin your first year at Princeton and you no doubt are looking forward—perhaps with some trepidation—to the new lifestyle and challenges you will encounter here. I want you to know from the outset that the University has gone out of its way in recent years to make the campus hospitable to freshmen.

Years ago, freshmen showed up on campus and were given keys to their rooms and a perfunctory handshake by some arrogant upperclassman being paid to come back early to perform that duty. Then the poor freshman found out that he had no idea where his room was, because none of the Princeton dormitories, classrooms, or administration buildings had names on them. Now they all do, and the grounds and buildings department has even affixed name plates to the trees. You and your three roommates will live in Blair Hall. That's close to Nassau Street and convenient in case your mom (who we understand has purchased a condominium in town) decides to pay you a visit.

Years ago, you would keep an anxious eye out as you explored the campus. You would be watching for sophomores, week, Brooke, you'll find student organizations anxious to have freshmen join their ranks, and you and your classmates will be welcomed with open arms and cold beers. If beer turns you off (as smoking does), you will be happy to know that the University administration, responding to the state's recent decision to raise the legal drinking age from 19 to 21, insists that non-alcoholic beverages be made available at all functions.

Even the nerds down at the computer center are trying to be cool. They have invited you and your classmates to an open house so you can "learn how the computer can help you do your work in every course you take." They promise "tours, graphics, and munchies." Hey, Brooke, this place can be user friendly.

Of course, you will be required to get down to some business during freshman week. You will wait in line Monday afternoon in Dillon Gym to have your ID card photograph taken—the photographer will not be Francesco Scavullo. Down at the McCosh Infirmary they will weigh you, take your blood pressure, and ask for a brief medical history. You will be asked to float in Dillon Pool for 10 minutes—if you fail you will be plucked from the water—no one drowns—and be enrolled in a swimming course as part of your freshman year physical education program.

On Monday morning at 10, you will report to 50 McCosh Hall for a 1½-hour writing exercise that will determine whether or not you have to take a course to sharpen your skills. It's not a crime if you are. Twenty percent of incoming freshmen are required to take the writing course.

The Clapper Caper. You and your classmates will gather Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the ornate, Romanesque revival auditorium called Alexander Hall to hear a lecture on the rules and responsibilities associated with Princeton's venerable honor system, which enables you to take examinations without proctors in the room. The speaker will be Iowa Congressman James Leach, Class of 1964. This meeting will be the last time you and your classmates gather together until graduation in 1987. Don't miss it.

During the week you will meet individually with your academic adviser to select four courses for the fall term and to determine how you will fulfill Princeton's distribution requirements in four academic areas.

Some of your classmates undoubtedly will try to steal the clapper that rings the bell in the tower of Nassau Hall. Stealing the clapper used to be serious business, and the University would beef up security to stop the annual assault. But now that's more relaxed, as well, and the University virtually sponsors the event so that freshmen can say they stole the clapper, but do it without inflicting any damage on themselves or on the building.

In short, Brooke, you're likely to witness a few contrived events during your first days at Princeton, and you can be excused if you decide to contrive one yourself—a press conference just to get the hordes of reporters off your back. Inee Marcos, daughter of the Philippine president, held a press conference during her freshman week in the early 1970s and it seemed to work for her.

I know that you and your family, in consultation with the University, have already decided to do no interviews, allow no pictures, and have no press conference. The University, besieged with inquiries from the media, even went so far as to send a wire to all news organizations informing them of your decisions. But even that wire generated phone calls.

Within a few weeks you might decide to throw a few morsels out to the press. If so, tell the reporters that, while you are better known now than your classmates, it may not always be that way. Princeton churns out its share of celebrities, even in show business, and you can point out Jimmy Stewart, Jose Ferrer, and more recently Parker Stevenson.

You might also tell the reporters that your notoriety notwithstanding, you will face the same humongous reading assignments and the same deadlines for course papers that are confronted by all your classmates. You can point out that John F. Kennedy dropped out of Princeton during his freshman year in 1935, and Princetonians have never let Harvard, from which he eventually graduated in 1940, forget that fact. You might draw a lesson from the experience of Inee Marcos. She never did graduate; she flunked out. At Princeton, that is one thing that is still being taken very seriously.

the first Princeton Hospital, a shelf filled with books on gardening in the public library, funds to the Stony Brook Watershed Association to buy tree planters to help fight erosion, and tuition for science teachers to attend nature camps.

PDS BEGINS YEAR

With New Headmaster. Under the new leadership of Headmaster James W. Gramentine, Princeton Day School will begin its 19th year on Tuesday, September 13, when classes for students in grades 5 through 12 (middle and upper schools) begin at 8:15 a.m. Kindergarten through grade 4 (lower school) classes will begin on Wednesday, September 14, at 8:15 a.m. The traditional orientation for all ninth graders and all new upper school students will be held on Monday, September 12, at 10 a.m., and an open house for all new students in grades K through 8 and their parents, will commence at 2 p.m. that same day.

Sanford B. Bing, who served as Acting Headmaster last year, will resume his duties as Head of the Upper School in addition to filling the new position of Assistant Headmaster. Fourteen new faculty and staff members will join the school in September, bringing the total number of faculty members up to 104 for the coming year.

The school's board of trustees, at its annual meeting in June, elected officers for 1983-1984. Re-elected were Mrs. Thomas W. Eglin as chairman; John D. Wallace, vice chairman; Mrs. Richard J. Osborne, secretary; and John J. Southwick, Jr., treasurer. Elected to their first three-year terms as trustees were alumnae Rebecca W. Bushnell '70, and Yuki Moore Laurenti '75 from Doylestown and Trenton respectively; Morton Collins, Winton Manning and Mrs. Harry Wolf from Princeton.

NEW MEMBERS SOUGHT

By Square Dance Group. In an effort to attract new members, the Princeton Squares will hold demonstrations on Saturday, September 10, from noon to 1:30 at Palmer Square and on Sunday, September 25, from 1 to 2:30 at Quaker Bridge Mall. On Friday, September 23, there will be a free square dance from 8 to 10 at Community Park School.

The Princeton Squares, in existence for 25 years, meets twice a month at Community Park School for dancing in squares of eight people. The Squares say that this is the most American of dancing and has been designated by Congress as the national folk dance. Square dancing, the Squares add, is "friendly and polite, vigorous but not strenuous, patterned but not rigid. If you can walk, you can square dance," they say.

But because square dancing is not all that easy, and requires the mind as well as the feet, classes are necessary. The Princeton Adult School in conjunction with Princeton Squares will offer beginner's classes in modern western square dancing, starting October 5, at 7:15 at Community Park School.

All are invited to the demonstrations, the free square dance evening and to the classes. For more information call Joan Lechner, 924-7545.

OPENING DAY SET

For St. Paul School. St. Paul School will reopen on Wednesday, September 7, at 8 a.m.

Kindergarten will begin on Monday, September 12, at 8. The first three days of school will be half days with dismissal at 11:45 a.m. All new students will report to the school cafeteria, and all former students will report to last year's lines and homeroom.

Students will be assigned to this year's classes from their former homeroom. Any student repeating a grade should report to the school cafeteria.

WORLD FOOD DAY SET

In October. Sunday, October 16, has been declared World Food Day by Governor Thomas Kean at a ceremony in Trenton last Thursday. The date, the anniversary of the founding of the U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) will be observed by community activities in 152 nations and by hundreds of hunger fighting organizations. Dr. John Conrod, who attended the ceremony on behalf of the Princeton Hunger Coalition, said that the tenth annual Princeton CROP walk will be held on that date.

The Governor's proclamation was presented to representatives of 33 groups throughout the state which make up a "Blue Ribbon Commission on Ending Hunger" of the New Jersey Council of Churches. The Blue Ribbon Commission presented a proclamation of its own to former Congressman Millicent Fenwick.

Mrs. Fenwick is about to leave for Rome to assume her new duties as the U.S. representative to the FAO. She spoke of the need to support solutions which are sensitive to the skills and cultures of the hungry people themselves.

The Rev. Terry Grove, state director of Church World Service-CROP, presented the Governor and Mrs. Fenwick with tiny ox bells made by peasants in Kampuchea (Cambodia), which symbolize the type of self-help efforts which end hunger. The bells are hand made by melting machine gun bullet casings. Mr. Grove commented that over 20,000 New Jersey residents would be walking for CROP on World Food Day.

Other World Food Day activities in Princeton will include an educational conference on October 15 and presentations in churches and schools.

REGISTRATION SET

By YWCA. The Princeton YWCA announces the opening of registration for its fall session 1983.

Registration will take place Saturday, September 10, 9 to 11 a.m. for pre-school classes; Saturday, September 10, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. for all classes; and Monday, September 12, 9 to 7 for all classes.

The adult department will continue its program of classes, Artisans Guild courses, clubs, tours, and its Women's Services Institute.

The youth department will offer a wide range of courses and activities for young people, pre-school through high school, including special holiday activities. The youth department nursery is available to members with children 1 to 5 years of age.

Community Service Council Records Sharp Rise In Usage of Its "First Call for Help" Service
"I want some kind of creative summer program before I go back to school!" "I've got this frail, elderly mother..." "I'm desperate: I've got to go back to work and I haven't any place to leave my baby..."
A sharp increase — more than 50 percent — has been recorded over the last two months in calls to the "First Call for Help" line of the Princeton Area Council of Community Services. The monthly increase is noticeable over a longer period, as well: 53 calls this past June, compared to 37 in June of 1979.
"We're getting calls from places that never called before," reports Jacqueline Stacey, the Council's information and referral specialist.
Most of the people who call know what they need; they simply do not know where to find it and they are sure the Council will know.

But why the sudden increase? Because more people now know about First Call, says Linda Eckert, the Council's executive director.
Some months ago, to their considerable surprise, members of the Council's board of directors began realizing that many people in communities outside Princeton, and even the staffs of United Way agencies, did not know about First Call.
So two directors — Margaret Bol of Montgomery Township, and Joan Marik, who lives in Princeton — decided to make sure the public did indeed know about First Call.

With a group of volunteers, they began to call on school guidance counselors, principals, nurses, psychologists and special-service staff. They talked with first-aid squads. They outlined First Call to welfare directors and recreation departments in the communities around Princeton.

They explained to police and juvenile officers what they had to offer. They sat down with clergy, librarians, hospital administrators and doctors.
What they were selling, it is not — and Ms. Eckert emphasizes this — a hot line. First Call, sometimes called FHFC, from its initials, tells you where to turn to get the help you need.
The teen-ager who wanted something "creative" to fill the summer hours, was referred to Creative Theatre Unlimited and the Tomato Patch program at Mercer County Community College.
The woman with the elderly mother too frail to be left alone all day, was advised to call the Homemakers Service. She learned from First Call that the Homemakers will start a two-days-a-week program for the families of those with Alzheimer's disease, and that Family Service will have a center where elderly people within a certain income bracket, may spend two days a week.
First Call also told her about Reassurance Calling, the Friendly Visitors and Meals on Wheels — all services for the elderly.
The desperate mother who needed care for her baby, learned about the new Princeton Area Family Day Care Network, a group of women who care for children professionally and could provide the mother with several Family Service.

As the volunteers toured the area, they discovered a wide variety of needs, many of them new, like the dramatic increase in the number of children emotionally affected by divorce, or the need for career counseling about employment and what to do if you lose your job.

There are "very successful" dances at Princeton's Y, programs through the Recreation Department, Red Cross, schools, and Corner House, she says. Proud of its Youth Concerns Committee, which has played a role in starting many of these activities, the Council would like to duplicate the committee in other towns.
"We invited Montgomery and Plainsboro to talk with us, and we hope to set up something in both places. It's hard, though, when there is not the sense of 'town' and 'center' where kids can congregate, the way there is in Princeton."

When the problem is complex, First Call will try to involve many agencies. A disturbed mother can't control her daughter — is there alcoholism and drug use here? Is the father out of work? Can the school help?
"We'd suggest the mother talk to the school counselor, go to an Alanon meeting (for families of alcoholics), see the school help."

Community Service Council Records Sharp Rise In Usage of Its "First Call for Help" Service
"I want some kind of creative summer program before I go back to school!" "I've got this frail, elderly mother..." "I'm desperate: I've got to go back to work and I haven't any place to leave my baby..."
A sharp increase — more than 50 percent — has been recorded over the last two months in calls to the "First Call for Help" line of the Princeton Area Council of Community Services. The monthly increase is noticeable over a longer period, as well: 53 calls this past June, compared to 37 in June of 1979.
"We're getting calls from places that never called before," reports Jacqueline Stacey, the Council's information and referral specialist.
Most of the people who call know what they need; they simply do not know where to find it and they are sure the Council will know.

But why the sudden increase? Because more people now know about First Call, says Linda Eckert, the Council's executive director.
Some months ago, to their considerable surprise, members of the Council's board of directors began realizing that many people in communities outside Princeton, and even the staffs of United Way agencies, did not know about First Call.
So two directors — Margaret Bol of Montgomery Township, and Joan Marik, who lives in Princeton — decided to make sure the public did indeed know about First Call.

With a group of volunteers, they began to call on school guidance counselors, principals, nurses, psychologists and special-service staff. They talked with first-aid squads. They outlined First Call to welfare directors and recreation departments in the communities around Princeton.

They explained to police and juvenile officers what they had to offer. They sat down with clergy, librarians, hospital administrators and doctors.
What they were selling, it is not — and Ms. Eckert emphasizes this — a hot line. First Call, sometimes called FHFC, from its initials, tells you where to turn to get the help you need.
The teen-ager who wanted something "creative" to fill the summer hours, was referred to Creative Theatre Unlimited and the Tomato Patch program at Mercer County Community College.
The woman with the elderly mother too frail to be left alone all day, was advised to call the Homemakers Service. She learned from First Call that the Homemakers will start a two-days-a-week program for the families of those with Alzheimer's disease, and that Family Service will have a center where elderly people within a certain income bracket, may spend two days a week.
First Call also told her about Reassurance Calling, the Friendly Visitors and Meals on Wheels — all services for the elderly.
The desperate mother who needed care for her baby, learned about the new Princeton Area Family Day Care Network, a group of women who care for children professionally and could provide the mother with several Family Service.

As the volunteers toured the area, they discovered a wide variety of needs, many of them new, like the dramatic increase in the number of children emotionally affected by divorce, or the need for career counseling about employment and what to do if you lose your job.

There are "very successful" dances at Princeton's Y, programs through the Recreation Department, Red Cross, schools, and Corner House, she says. Proud of its Youth Concerns Committee, which has played a role in starting many of these activities, the Council would like to duplicate the committee in other towns.

ART COURSESET
By YMCA. The YMCA is offering two new art courses during its fall session beginning September 12. "Wall Hangings and Quillings" will offer an opportunity to make decorative wallhangings from various fabrics, accomplished by removing threads, or adding beads, yarn and the like. The old art of quilling, involving the rolling of strips of colored paper into attractive designs, will also be taught. The course will meet for eight weeks on Thursday evenings through November 3.

"Photography in the Light," offered Thursday afternoons from 12:30-2 for the same eight-week period, offers an opportunity to create unusual "photographs" using student creativity, photographic paper, and the photo-chemical development process. This course is for senior citizens in the area.

Molly Moskowitz, the instructor for both courses, has a Master of Fine Arts from Rutgers University, and is an artist with extensive teaching experience. Call the YMCA at 924-4467 for more information.

PROGRAM EXPANDED
For Nursing Students. Starting next month, Rutgers University's College of Nursing will admit high school graduates and college transfer students to its baccalaureate degree satellite program on the New Brunswick campus.

FLORIO INTERN: John Gutman, left, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gutman of 200 Hun Road and a senior at Princeton University, served an internship this summer in the office of Congressman James J. Florio. John's interest in business and economics was strengthened by his internship in Florio's office. Rep. Florio is the Chairman of a Commerce Subcommittee and John had an opportunity to work closely on commerce issues.

State University's private been made possible by a fund-raising arm. The grant will enable the Newark-based College of Nursing to expand the existing baccalaureate degree program for registered nurses it established on the New Brunswick campus four years ago.

The action then was in response to requests by registered nurses statewide.

The funding of the expanded program also is aimed at establishing a clinical affiliation between the College of Nursing and Middlesex General-University Hospital in New Brunswick, strengthening the existing ties with University Hospital in Newark, and expanding student enrollment on Rutgers' New Brunswick campus.

The expanded, four-year nursing program at the New Brunswick campus is scheduled to get under way in September with a total enrollment of 106 students, which will include the 56 registered nurses currently enrolled in the satellite program. Students will be drawn from central New Jersey.

The enrollment goal is to add a maximum of 50 students a year for a total of 200 by the fourth, or senior, year, according to Dr. Dorothy DeMaio, dean of the nursing school, who will direct the program.

Major Improvement Needed on Defense by Princeton, As Offense Not Expected to Be as Strong as Last Year

Two years ago, the Princeton football team barely squeezed out a winning record (5-4-1) because its high-powered offense, led by Bob Holly, won four games in the final minutes of play. The defense, however, broke a record that had stood for almost 40 years for points allowed in a season, giving up 305. The offense tallied only 233, but fortunately many came at the right time.

Last year, the disparity grew; the defense set another record (317), and offensive output fell to 222. And despite the record breaking passing of Brent Woods, the Tigers could not put points on the board when needed most. The season mark fell to 3-7.

SPORTS

In Princeton

If things don't change this fall that record could look good by November. If the defense allows anywhere near 300 or more points in 10 games, the Orange and Black will be lucky to capture two of them.

The Tigers finished seventh in the league in defense last year, and certainly did not distinguish themselves against non-ivy foes either, giving up 35 points to Delaware, 20 to Army and 47 to Lafayette.

Unless opposing defenses are much weaker than expected, Princeton's offense will find points harder to come by. There are no returning starters to be found in the backfield.

Quarterback Steve Cusma is largely untested; only Ralph Ferraro has seen much varsity action among the running backs. Kevin Guthrie and Derek Graham will pose a double-barreled threat on their pass routes, but a consistent attack, able to sustain long drives may be difficult to develop.

CAN THIS BE STOPPED?: Princeton's woefully inadequate pass defense last year (Ken Bruce [27] and Kevin Williams [13] were beaten here by Dartmouth's John Olejniczak) gave up points faster than the offense could score them. If the defensive backfield doesn't do a better job this fall, last season's 3-7 mark is going to look good.

The pressure is going to be on the defense to give up points slowly and grudgingly, especially in the early contests. Opponents' running attacks, which last season gained 1,000 yards more than the Tigers', will have to be curtailed.

An inexperienced secondary will need to improve on pass defense. Princeton outgained its opposition by a wide margin through the air in 1982, but significantly it gave up as many touchdowns (17) as it scored via the pass.

Unfortunate Start. Efforts to revitalize the defense got off to an unfortunate start when Dan Griggs, hired in January to direct the secondary, unexpectedly resigned late last month. His replacement Steven Reese has had much to learn in a short time.

With the Dartmouth game less than three weeks away, he'll have much to teach in a short time also. He has no returning starters to work with.

Three players are being considered for the strong cornerback slot, junior Scott Mayfield, (5-10, 170) switched from split end, senior Alan Gladis (5-9, 160) a first team all-league selection on the lightweight squad last year, and a fast and talented sophomore Jim Anderson (5-11, 175), who had a superb season as a freshman. Senior Dave Brodess (5-11, 188) seems to have the inside track for the other cornerback spot. Sophomore Mark Dexter (5-10, 175) is also available.

Another senior Tom Takacs (6-2, 180) will battle junior Jay Chandler (6-2, 183) for the free safety position, with sophomore John Hoyt (6-1, 184) in reserve. Junior Rick Coley (6-0, 200) is listed as the top prospect to nail down the safety or "Tiger" position. Junior Bill Carpenter (6-3, 182) is second on the pre-season depth chart.

Tigers Scrimmage Twice Football fans wanting to get a pre-season look at the Princeton football team will have three chances to do so.

The first and third units will meet Wagner College on the field in front of Jadwin gym. A 10:30 start has been planned, but this is only an approximate time, it may be later.

The following Friday, Sept. 9, the Tiger second and fourth string will play Ramapo late in the afternoon. An intra-squad scrimmage is planned for the following Saturday morning.

guard Jeff Urbany (6-0, 229), and junior tackles Mark von Kreuter (6-3, 235) and Mark Berggren, both of whom won starting assignments as sophomores, will make the yardage up the middle difficult to accumulate for opposing running backs.

Both ends, Gary Grass and Dan Thompson, have departed, but a pair of seasoned players will take their places. Both senior George Chryst (6-4, 213) and junior Mark Petruzzello (6-0, 213) are expected to be better-than-ample replacements.

There is good depth in the line also, should injuries sideline anyone. Senior Bert Pierce (6-0, 204) is a solid performer behind Urbany at nose guard. Senior Gene St. Pierre (6-5, 225) is good enough to challenge for a starting tackle spot, and juniors Mike Winter (6-3, 240) and Dave Augustin (6-1, 220) are not far behind. Others who will provide back-up support at the end positions include juniors Brian Hetherington (6-0, 204), Kevin Patrick (6-2, 212), and John Hays (6-0, 196), and sophomore Wayne Cardoni (6-0, 192).

Most of the players participated in winter conditioning and spring agility programs with positive results, according to coach Frank Navarro. John Knudson has taken over the responsibilities as defensive coordinator. He and Navarro plan to utilize the linebackers more, dropping one man off the line to a third linebacker spot on occasion.

On a more basic level, the defense needs to reduce the mistakes that hurt time and be reminded that there is no substitute for good hard tackling.

IN WORLD TOURNAMENT Sweet Jersey Corn. The Princeton-based Sweet Jersey Corn women's softball team, recently ranked the number one slow pitch softball team in New Jersey, will compete in the United States Slow Pitch Softball Association's (USSSA) women's Class B East Divisional Tournament over Labor Day weekend in Peabody, Mass. This is the second year in a row that Sweet Jersey Corn has appeared in this event.

Other achievements by the Corn this season include a 21-0 record in the Mercer County Women's Major League where it was regular season and playoff champion; a second-place finish in the N.J. State Amateur Softball Association Tournament; a third-place finish in the Mid-Atlantic ASA Tournament and a first in the Rascals Annual Spring Classic Tournament.

Catcher Grace Durland led Sweet Jersey Corn in hitting this season with a .520 average, followed by Dee Pearce at .455 and Sandi Hibbs, the team's leader in extra base hits, at .442. Pearce plays first base for the Corn while Hibbs is the right center fielder.

Other team members are Beth Muzicka, second base; Dee Vertucci, third, and Marianne Smith, shortstop. Also, Donna Nicholson, left field, Debbie Breithaupt, right center, and Carol Knapp, right field. Clare Baxter and Lou Ann Slocum shared the pitching mound.

Other Corn players contributing to the team's success this year include Andrea Perrine, Maureen Nosal, Sallie Toscano, Lisa Schmidt and Marjy Weinkop.

The team is managed by Steve Cohen and coached by Bob Smyth and Rob Hibbs. Mary Farrell and John Rounds are assistant coaches.

Miles Scores for Nebraska

Paul Miles, a football scoring sensation for the Princeton High School Little Tigers a few seasons back, had a hand in Monday night's rout by Nebraska over Penn State, the defending national champion.

Miles, who opted to play for Nebraska after considering a fistful of offers as one of the state's most sought-after running backs, scored Nebraska's final touchdown on a one-yard dive, as the Corn Huskers crushed Penn State, 44-6, at the Meadowlands Stadium. In winning, Nebraska avenged a disputed 27-24 loss to Penn State last year, its only setback. Nebraska has been named as the No. 1 pre-season team by the football polls.

Miles set scoring records at PHS as a junior during the 1979 season when he scored 24 touchdowns and rushed for 1,337 yards. As a senior, hobbled with an ankle injury his last three games, he scored 17 times. Miles, who was also a state champion sprinter in track, finished his glittering career as a Little Tiger by rushing for more than 3,000 yards and scoring 310 points.

Redshirted last year by Nebraska, Miles is a sophomore. After Mike Rozier, Nebraska's All American tailback, graduates, Miles's legion of Princeton followers hopes he can take over and set some Husker records of his own.

STURHAHN, DICKENSON & BERNARD
Here's one of the most incredible stories in sports history ... Although many fans know that a one-armed man, Pete Gray, played big league baseball in 1945, very few people know what Gray did the year before — which was even more amazing ... In 1944, Gray played in the minors, for Memphis in the Southern League, and despite having only one arm, he batted .333 in 129 games, with 167 hits, including 21 doubles and 5 homers, made only 6 errors in the outfield all year, and won the league's Most Valuable Player Award! ... Gray batted .218 in his one big league season in 1945, and although reaching the majors was a great feat, his minor league record the year before was even more inspiring. +++ Three cheers for the red, white, and blue ... and S.D.B.'s claim service. +++ Oddly enough, although England is the home of Wimbledon, the world's top tennis tournament, NO English player has won the men's singles title of Wimbledon in the last 47 YEARS ... Last player from England to win the Wimbledon men's singles championship was Fred Perry in 1936. +++ Where was the first golf course in America? ... The first one was built in Yonkers, N.Y., less than 100 years ago, in 1888.

For Princeton Soccer Coach. For one day this summer, Charles Scozzaro was at the mountain top. Scozzaro is coach of the 1974 Princeton A team, an independent team comprised of Princeton youths born in 1974 who will compete in area games and tournaments this fall. Pele is the former world class player from Brazil.

A number of players from the 1974 team and Scozzaro attended Pele's soccer camp in New York for a week where they were exposed to various styles of soccer play by other children at the camp, groups from Colombia, Venezuela, Canada and other parts of the world.

Scozzaro reported that he was impressed with Pele's sincerity and warmth. His day with Pele, he said, was spent walking around with Pele observing various groups in action, as Pele gave advice and instruction, talking with the young players, posing for photographs and giving out autographs.

3 FOR 1 STOCK SPLIT
By Chronar Corp. Chronar Corp., the solar photovoltaic cell manufacturer, has announced stockholder approval of an increase in its authorized shares of common stock to 20 million from 3.5 million. The board of directors has also authorized a stock division on the basis of two additional shares of common stock for each outstanding share, payable to shareholders of record on August 22.

Chronar also announced that its board of directors approved the joint venture agreement signed on July 20 with AFG Industries, Kingsport, Tenn. calling for the construction and operation of a plant in the U.S. to manufacture amorphous silicon photovoltaic panels. The AFG board of directors has also approved the contract. Under the agreement, which has a term of 15 years, AFG Industries may also participate as an equity investor in future joint ventures for batch manufacturing plants, and ultimately, for flow-line manufacturing plants in the U.S. and Canada.

The first joint venture which will be capitalized in excess of $6 million, will be owned 51 percent by Chronar and 49 percent by AFG. The joint venture will purchase the batch manufacturing equipment from Chronar; Chronar will supply photovoltaic technology to the joint venture; AFG will provide initial financing, glass coating, handling technology, and glass.

Keith S. Reid-Green Robert R. Demers

SERI, the government's solar laboratory, recently reported that Chronar's solar cells on a glass substrate had achieved an efficiency of approximately 5 percent over an area of 130 square centimeters, substantially above SERI's goal for a 50 square centimeter sub-module by late 1983.

At the annual meeting shareholders approved the nomination to the board of directors of Wickham Skinner, James E. Robison Professor of Business Administration at Harvard Business School. Prof. Skinner is a specialist in manufacturing policy and corporate strategy and is currently a director of Dynamics Research Corp. and Helix Technology. He is also a member, Manufacturing Studies Board of the National Academy of Sciences and Engineering.

Founded in 1976, Chronar has developed a proprietary process to make large scale production of low-cost solar photovoltaic devices possible. Photovoltaics, the process of converting sunlight into

Schools

Identifying those who need help. Both views are valid."

Some students, for example, may be in remedial math only, or remedial reading for a period of time.

Another ten percent are in Special Education, which ranges from minor speech therapy to students so severely handicapped they are sent out of the district to special schools.

"We send one percent out of the district, and that is somewhat high. But parents move here knowing their kids will be cared for — again, we have diversity."

Princeton is an academic town, its school system geared to the upper end of the scale.

"I've heard that we are the highest in the whole country in terms of the number of years of schooling our parents have had," Dr. Houston says.

"But the kid who comes from a home without this is not in the mainstream and can suffer a poor self-image, feel rebellious. Parents — or just a single parent — may be holding down two jobs, and unable to help."

"You can't help by trying to change the standards for these students. We may do so much for them we defeat the purpose. Don't hand a child a crutch who could stand on both legs. This is what I worry most about...."

A Team for Everyone. Every kid at Princeton High can be on a team. There is a no-cut policy.

You might not play in all the games, but you're on the team, and there are 32 teams to choose from. More than 700 students out of the 1,020 at the school, went out for interscholastic sports.

Although drugs are not abused so much as they were ten years ago, alcohol is a problem. Princeton is a town where hard liquor is common in homes, and parents leave children on their own in the house. Also, undergraduates drift over from the University with their drinking patterns.

"Kids are sophisticated about drugs and knowledgeable about them,

To Vienna!

The Princeton High School Choir and the Princeton High School Orchestra have been invited to Austria next July to perform at the Youth Music Festival.

The choir has frequently traveled abroad, but this is the first time both choir and orchestra have been invited to participate in a musical event. The date is July 7, the place is Vienna.

"We've got to raise $150,000 to pull it off," remarked PHS Principal John Sakala this week. Previous trips abroad have been financed from the proceeds of fund drives. The principal added that some students are members of both choir and orchestra.

William Trego is director of the choir and Portia Sonnenfeld directs the orchestra.

"The result is very poor spectator involvement," the superintendent grins. "Nobody left to cheer!"

Last year, PHS was Central Jersey runner-up in football; Central Jersey champion in girls field hockey and girls lacrosse; Central Jersey champions in tennis.

"Project Adventure" a kind of Outward Bound experience, is now required of all tenth graders.

but less concerned about alcohol," is Dr. Houston's experience, and he adds:

"Any high school that says 'we have no drugs' is either trying to cover up, or is really out of it."

He points to a new project, Safe Rides, that everyone hopes will prevent serious accidents due to drunk driving, and to the high school's successful Peer Group program, in which kids support one another in making decisions about teen problems.

Parents — and taxpayers — seem eager and proud to support excellence.

"The high school has the best music program in the United States," the superintendent says flatly. "The town demands it. Most of the kids in the program have had private lessons before they come to the high school."

The Jazz Band just keeps winning. It has won at Newport, and it has won — repeatedly — at the Berkeley Jazz Festival in New England.

"Parents' expectations are high and demanding," Dr. Houston says, "and people are willing to support high-quality programs. Parents are also not only willing, but eager to organize groups to support the schools. We have the Friends of Princeton High Athletics, the Friends of the Princeton High School Library.

"Princeton isn't a suburban bedroom. People seem to value it as a community. That's what makes Princeton special. I would call it 'semi-unique'."

Palmer Square Plans on Agenda Of Borough Council Next Tuesday

Two major actions relating to the development of Palmer Square will be considered next Tuesday by Borough Council at its regular September meeting at 8 in Borough Hall.

Council will hold public hearing on the ordinance granting air rights to Collins Development for construction of a bridge over Palmer Square East connecting the present Nassau Inn to a proposed addition.

Council will also hear an appeal by R. William Potter from the Planning Board's approval of Collins' plans for this phase of Palmer Square expansion.

Wednesday, September 14 has been set aside for continuing arguments in case time runs out on Tuesday night.

Robert McChesney voted against, and Mr. Bearse was out of town. The initial attempt at introduction on July 20 failed because Mr. Woodbridge was on vacation.

No one seems to have had a change of mind since the introduction.

Both Mr. McChesney and Mr. Blanc have said they do not see any "public good" in granting the air rights to Collins. Mr. McChesney's chief concern is open space, and he has said that if there could be a "real" open space exchange — perhaps of 10,000 square feet — he might change his vote.

The amount of money Collins will pay the Borough — $120,000 over a period of five years — isn't enough if "public good" is defined as money, according to Mr. Blanc. He would have to see "substantially more" money for the Borough before he would vote in favor.

Mr. Bearse has said that he is not opposed to the bridge in itself, but he doesn't think the Borough is getting enough money in exchange. He would like to see the air rights agreement renegotiated.

Mayor Cawley and supporters of air rights on Council point to the money the Borough will be getting, including the $120,000 and the tax advantages.

He has expressed his fears that Arthur Collins, principal in Collins Development, "might just throw up his hands and go away."

One question regarding air rights will have been settled by Tuesday night, Collins lawyers said this week. Opponents had declared that under the law, air rights could be granted only if the properties on both sides of the street were under the name of the same owner, and title to the east side of Palmer Square East, where Collins wants the inn addition, was under the name of Joseph Blanc and

BUT I THOUGHT 'SCHOOL' RHYMED WITH 'POOL!' No way, kids, no way. Princeton's community swimming pools closed at the end of a steamy Labor Day and school starts next Monday. These three had a glorious final splash — it was great while it lasted. From left: Nancy Rothberg, Beth Branon and Sheri Durkee.

Family Service Agency Planning Day Care Center Here for Adults

It's lonesome — by yourself all day with only a wheel-chair and a television set for company. Your daughter-in-law is kind, but she works and is so busy when she comes home ...

Two days a week, starting Tuesday, October 4, the Family Service Agency will have an Adult Day Care Center in the Community Room at Redding Circle. There is space for only 15 people, and applications will be received throughout September.

To be eligible, you must live in Mercer County — anywhere in the county. You must be free of serious medical problems. It's all right if you are bound to your wheel-chair, perhaps the victim of a stroke, or arthritis. It's all right if you have minor mental impairment.

But — no Alzheimer's disease, no people who wander about, no serious mental disability, no hourly injections and the like.

You must also meet Title XX financial standards, which are based on 80 percent of the median income of Mercer County. This means that if you live alone or with your grown children, you are allowed a maximum income of $854 a month or $10,250 a year. The income of your children is not counted. For a married couple, the maximum is $1,117 a month or $13,404 a year.

The program is funded by the state with a grant of $27,102. There are no fees for those who participate and lunch is included, without charge.

After you apply, program director Elaine Friedman and her aide, Ruth Howard, two pleasant young professionals, will visit you in your home. They will talk with you about things you are interested in, get an idea of your physical condition and ask what you'd like to do in the center.

Crack Discovered In University Pool

A crack in the tiling at the deep end of the swimming pool in Princeton University's Dillon Gymnasium has caused the closing of the pool, and sent about 30 Masters swimmers in search of more tranquil waters.

"I know that everyone will bend over backwards to help us and to help the University," says Tink Bolster, who runs the Masters program.

University swim teams would normally begin practice in two or three weeks, according to Nick Donatelli, director of sports information. But he expects it to be ten days or two weeks before the extent of damage is known and until then, nobody can tell how long it will take to repair the pool and open it again.
